Yarning over the Yardrails

Farmers, livestock transporters, agents and small landholders gathered at the Mount Gambier & District Saleyards on Wednesday 30 July 2025 for Yarns Over the Yardrails, a community wellbeing event supporting those affected by ongoing dry conditions.

Hosted by the District Council of Grant and sponsored by the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA) Family and Business Support Program, the day offered a relaxed and informative environment for agriculturalists to come together for a feed, connect with services and share practical strategies for getting through the tough seasons.

District Council of Grant Mayor Kylie Boston said the Saleyards are more than just a workplace and place to sell stock, they're a place of connection for farmers.

"It was fantastic to see around 80 producers come together at the Saleyards to take a breather, for honest conversations about life on the land and to hear from people who genuinely care about their wellbeing," Mayor Boston said.

Council Decisions

Updates from the District Council of Grant's latest meeting on Monday 18 August 2025:

Grant funding application lodged to progress Pelican Point coastal adaptation planning

The District Council of Grant has lodged a funding application under the South Australian Coast Protection Board's 2025-2026 Coast Protection Grant Program seeking support to progress concept designs for critical coastal adaptation action at Pelican Point.

The application, submitted on 30 July 2025, was prepared with the assistance of expert coastal planning consultants FSC Range and builds on technical work already completed as part of Council's broader Coastal Adaptation Strategy Project.

Council's submission proposes the development of a concept design for a coastal protection structure and revitalised public reserve. This would offer significant community benefit protecting infrastructure such as local roads, open spaces, power supply and the Community Wastewater Management System, while also improving public access to the foreshore.

Community engagement has played a key role in shaping the project, with feedback from residents and stakeholders helping to identify issues and priorities, particularly during workshops for the Coastal Adaptation Strategy Project. This will continue throughout the project's development, including the formation of a Community Reference Group.

If successful, the coastal adaptation planning project is expected to proceed to concept design, with key deliverables to be completed by June 2026.

Establishment of a First Nations Reference Group

The District Council of Grant has agreed to establish a First Nations Reference Group to strengthen engagement and collaboration with local First Nations representatives.

The Reference Group will provide a platform for regular conversations between Council and First Nations community leaders, Elders and representatives to ensure Council's initiatives respect and reflect the values and customs of First Nations peoples. The group will also support the development of Council's Reconciliation Action Plan.

The Reference Group will consist of up to three First Nations representatives, one Elected Member and three Council staff members.

Council will work with Burrandies Aboriginal corporation to assist with identifying suitable First Nations representatives.

Bendigo Bank Port MacDonnell Agency Closure

Council was advised by Bendigo Bank that the Port MacDonnell Agency will permanently close at 2:00pm Friday 3 October 2025.

The decision is part of Bendigo Bank's national restructure and was not made by the local branch. Bendigo Bank is closing 28 agencies across Australia due to declining use, outdated systems, and a shift to online and alternative banking options.

The closure will particularly affect Port MacDonnell local businesses, residents using EFTPOS facilities for cash and customers with passbook accounts. Bendigo Bank will contact impacted customers to advise alternative banking options.

The District Council of Grant's Council Meetings are typically held on the third Monday of each month in the Council Chambers at 324 Commercial Street West, Mount Gambier. Community members are welcome to attend meetings however may be excluded while matters deemed confidential under the Local Government Act 1999 are being discussed.

Yarns over the Yardrails

The day's conversations included local agronomist Rick Jordan sharing insights on how the farming community can make the most of recent rainfall and prepare their paddocks for the season ahead, emphasising a return to the fundamentals of good land management.

"Planning, mitigating risk and getting it right… they're the basics. "Focus on your core business, [be] clear on your direction and targets, be resourced in the right areas so you know what it is you need… have a plan and work the plan… and the other one is for yourself, be motivated," Mr Jordan said.

"It's recognising that it's okay to be tired with all this stuff. It has not been fun [working on the land] for the last 24 months… [but] it's Spring coming up, we've got the rainfall, we've got the good rainfall forecast…"

"so take time to actually motivate yourself about what is in front of us."

Experienced veterinarian Andrew Hoare built on Mr Jordan's key messages encouraging producers to reflect on what they've learned and build confidence through experience, while also offering advice on how to maintain good livestock condition and plan feed budgets.

"We're not guaranteed a conventional season every year, I don't think anyone knows what a normal season is anymore… [however] once you've done something [and] you've done it hard, you know you can get through it. The last two seasons we've learnt how to get through those two tough years," Mr Hoare said.

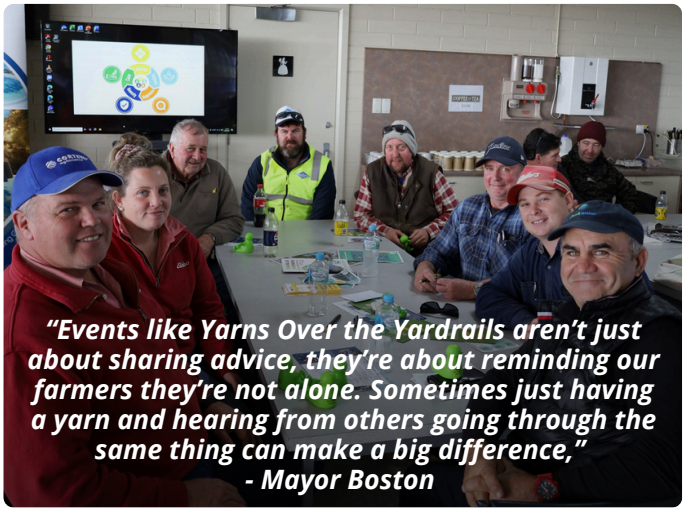

"If you can, go and try do some sort of rotational grazing [and] the better feeding you can put into your animals, the less animal health problems you're gonna have."

Attendees also explored what looking after yourself truly means when working on the land.

Former primary producer of 30 years and BlueWren Connections Founder Heather Ellis led an interactive session brainstorming tips on how to prioritise wellbeing in rural life.

"Some of the great things that they identified were things like getting in touch and hanging out with your family, maybe going fishing with a friend… quite a few people mentioned patting their dogs or hanging out with their animals," Mrs Ellis said.

"There are lots of different things we can do to stop and look after ourselves and never underestimate the simple things. Even when we come to the yards, what the [Social Value of Saleyards] research showed us [is] that sometimes people didn't come to buy and sell, they come to catch up [and] chat with people they hadn't seen for a while."

"Events like Yarns Over the Yardrails aren't just about sharing advice, they're about reminding our farmers they're not alone. Sometimes just having a yarn and hearing from others going through the same thing can make a big difference,"
- Mayor Boston

Representatives from PIRSA and SA Health were on hand throughout the day providing valuable information about the range of support packages and services available to farmers doing it tough, including the State Government's Drought Support Program, and helping primary producers understand how to access financial and other practical support tailored to their needs.

"Whether you're heading back to the paddock, the yards, or the kitchen table, take these messages with you; invest in yourself, plan ahead, seek support and remember you're not alone, there are many people you can talk to," Mayor Boston said in her closing remarks at Yarns over the Yardrails.

Community Grants Scheme & Glenburnie Memorial Hall

Eight community led projects were co-funded in the latest round of the District Council of Grant's Community Grants Scheme, helping local sporting clubs and community groups to deliver initiatives that enhance wellbeing and encourage participation in social and leisure activities.

Successful projects included:

- A new rainwater tank and pump at the Mount Gambier Karting Club;
- A new dishwasher and barbeque at the Port MacDonnell & District Bowling Club;
- Installation of an automatic emergency defibrillator (AED) at the Yahl CFS shed; and
- External painting of the Glenburnie Memorial Hall.

Glenburnie Memorial Hall Committee Member Lew Parsons said the Hall, originally established in 1953 as a memorial and meeting place for returned soldiers, is now evolving into a Veterans Support Centre.

"Our objective is to make the Hall a key resource for not only the Returned Veteran community but also all of the Glenburnie residents," Mr Parsons said.

"We would like to thank DC Grant for supporting this local facility; we believe it is now a worthwhile asset to the district."
- Mr Lew Parsons

In 2023, the Glenburnie Memorial Hall Committee was re-invigorated and began updating the Hall and adjoining tennis clubrooms into a Veterans Support Centre to continue as a place of connection.

"The Hall has now become a valuable local resource but it was looking rather shabby, not having been painted for many years,"

"The grant from District Council of Grant enabled us to have half of the outside of the hall painted."

The Community Grants Scheme will return with two rounds in 2025-2026. Funding will be available across three categories for incorporated not-for-profit organisations; Sporting Clubs, Community Groups and Community Participation.

Projects considered under the Community Grants Scheme include, but are not limited to:

- Safety/security enhancements;
- Amenity upgrades;
- Infrastructure and facility renovations;
- Community events promoting inclusion and connection; and
- Implementation of club programs.

Round one is anticipated to open mid-September 2025.

Keep Young Futures Bright: Teenagers and alcohol

As parents, you are always learning and growing, especially when you come across new information about how to keep your kids safe and healthy.

Research now shows that exposing teenagers to alcohol is harmful to the cells inside the developing brain. The effects can be anything from finding schoolwork harder to trouble processing emotions or performing at their chosen sport.

As parents and carers, the guidance you give plays an important role in helping your kids enjoy their teenage years. Talking to your children openly about alcohol's harms and refusing to supply it, will help keep them and their developing brain safe from harm.

Find out more about the impacts of alcohol and how to talk about drinking with your child on the Alcohol and Drug Foundation website.
